Note : *A Magistrate of the second class may, subject to the provisions of Chapters XIII and XIV and of section 135 hold a magisterial inquiry into any offence. CHAPTER XVII

Trials by Magistrates Non Summarily.

Notes:- (1) A Payam Magistrate may only try summarily.

(2) This chapter lays down the procedure where the Magistrate acts with the knowledge or on the assumption that the case is one for trial by a Magistrate. Provision is made in section 149 (2) for the transformation of the trial into a magisterial inquiry, followed by commitment to a High Court, if it appears in the course of the trial that the case is in fact one that should be so dealt with.

146 Procedure in Non-Summary Trial by Magistrate

The procedure laid down in this chapter shall be observed by Magistrates in the trial of cases non summarily.

147. Evidence for Prosecution.

149. Charge to be framed when offence appears to Have been committed.

- (2) If at any stage before the signing of judgement in the trial of a case under this chapter it appears to the Magistrate that the case is one which ought to be tried by a High Court, he shall in like manner frame a charge against the accused and in so far as he has not already done so, shall complete the procedure laid down in Chapter XVIII for inquiry into cases triable by a High Court down to the framing of the charge. The Magistrate shall thereafter observe the procedure prescribed in the said chapter to be followed after the framing of the charge.

Note :- *If a Magistrate of the second class starts a trial under this chapter and finds that the case is one which in his, opinion should be tried by a Magistrate of the first class he will stay proceedings and refer the case as directed by section 237. Note :- The Magistrate must before convicting on a plea of guilty satisfy himself that the accused has clearly understood the meaning of the charge in all its details, and essentials and also the effect of his plea. On accepting a plea of guilty it may be necessary to examine the record of any proceedings taken before the trial and to call witnesses whose evidence appears in such proceedings; the Court may do this under section 219.

151. Defense.

- (1) If the accused pleads not guilty or makes no plea, he shall be required to state whether he wishes to cross-examine any witness and if so which of the witnesses for the prosecution whose evidence has been taken.

- (2) Before summoning any witness for attendance in accordance with an application from the accused, the Magistrate, may order the deposit in the Court of any reasonable expenses to be incurred for the attendance of that witness except expenses for his transport, which are borne by the Government.

153. Procedure on Acquittal or Conviction.

- (1) If in any case under this chapter in which a charge has been framed the Magistrate finds the accused not guilty, he shall record an order of acquittal!
- (2) If in any such case the Magistrate finds the accused guilty, he shall announce his-finding and shall thereafter, if the accused has not previously called any witness to character, call upon him to produce such witnesses if he so desires and he wishes to make a statement in mitigation of punishment. The record of the accused's previous convictions (if any), if such record has not already been put in evidence, shall be produced and if necessary proved by the police and the Magistrate shall then pass sentence upon the accused according to law.

154. Absence of Complainant

When the proceedings have been instituted upon complaint and upon any day fixed for the hearing of the case, the complainant is absent, the Magistrate may in his discretion notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained at any time before the charge has been framed discharge the accused.

155. Frivolous or Vexatious Accusation.

Note:- Compensation awarded under this section may be recovered as if it were a fine. See section 313.

CHAPTER XVIII

Note:- Sections 158 to 172 (inclusive) in this Chapter lay down the procedure where the Magistrate acts with the knowledge or on the assumption that the case is for trial by a High Court, or where a Magistrate of the Payam Court holds an inquiry into a case which he is not competent to try. Provision is made (section 161) for the transformation of the inquiry when made by a Magistrate of the first or second class into a trial by such Magistrate while a Magistrate of Payam Court will, if the offence is not triable by himself, submit the case under section 237 on completion of the inquiry to a Magistrate of the first or second class for trial or commitment.

Section 172A of this Chapter gives a Magistrate of the first or second class power summarily to commit for trial to a High Court on the statements recorded in the Case Diary without hearing witnesses but otherwise informing the accused of the case against him and assisting him to prepare his defense. The object of this summary committal procedure is to shorten the time an accused awaits trial, and to save witnesses and Magistrate the time and trouble taken up by the ordinary procedure. Provided that the summary committal procedure set out in Section 172A of this Chapter shall be followed unless the offence is one punishable with death or when it is prejudicial to the ends of justice by reason of the number of the accused or the uncertainty of the evidence.

156. Commitment for Trial

No person shall be tried by a High Court except after having been committed for trial by a Magistrate of the first or second class and on the charges framed on committal as altered or added to by the Court under section 195.

157. Ordinary and Summary Commitment for Trial

The procedure laid down in sections 158 to 172 (inclusive) in this chapter is the ordinary procedure of commitment for trial by a High Court. It is also the procedure to be followed by a Magistrate of the Payam Court when holding an inquiry into a case, which he is not competent to try. - (4) The accused may cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution and in such case the complainant or prosecutor may re-examine them, and in like manner the complainant or prosecutor may cross-examine any witnesses produced for the defense and the accused may re-examine them.
- (5) The accused shall be at liberty to reserve his defense until the trial by the High Court.

159. When Accused Person to be Discharged.

- (1) If, upon taking all the evidence referred to in section 158, and making such examination (if any) of the accused as the Magistrate thinks necessary for the purpose of enabling, him to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him, the Magistrate finds that there are no sufficient grounds for committing the accused for trial to a High Court or for the trial of the accused by himself or some other Magistrate he shall record his reasons and discharge him.

Note :- See Section 218.

- (2) The Magistrate may discharge the accused at any previous stage of the case if for reasons to be recorded he considers the charge to be groundless.

160. Transformation of Inquiry into Trial.

If, after such evidence and examination (if any) have been taken and made or at any previous stage of the inquiry, the Magistrate is of opinion that the case is not one that should be tried by a High Court but that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence which should be tried by himself or some other Magistrate, he shall if he had jurisdiction, proceed himself to try the accused under Chapter XVI or Chapter XVII as the case may be or shall stay proceedings and submit the case to the proper Magistrate as laid down in section 237.

161. Procedure Thereupon.

When pursuant to the last preceding section the Magistrate decides to try the accused himself under Chapter XVII, he shall forthwith frame a charge under his hand against the accused and shall proceed in manner laid down in the said Chapter as upon the framing of a charge in a non-summary trial by a Magistrate.

162. Framing of Charge and Submission to a Superior Magistrate.

- (1) If, after such evidence and examination (if any) have been taken and made, the Magistrate being a Magistrate of the first or second class is satisfied that there are sufficient grounds for committing the accused for trial, he shall frame a charge under his hand declaring with what offence the accused is charged.
- (2) If the Magistrate holding the inquiry is a Magistrate of the Payam Court, he shall proceed as laid down in section 237.

- (1) If the Magistrate after hearing the witnesses summoned under section 165 is satisfied that there are no sufficient grounds for committing the accused, he may cancel the charge and discharge the accused or he may proceed as laid down in section 160.
- (2) If the Magistrate deems it unnecessary to summon and examine the witnesses named in any list given him under section 164 or if after hearing such witnesses he is still satisfied that there are sufficient grounds for committing the accused, he shall make an order committing the accused for trial to a High Court and shall briefly record his reasons for the commitment.

167. Summons to witnesses for Defense when Accused is Committed.

When the accused has given any list of witnesses under section 164 and has been committed for trial, the Magistrate shall summon such of the witnesses included in the list as have not appeared before himself to appear before the Court to which the accused has been committed.

Provided that, if the Magistrate thinks that any witness is included in the list for the purpose of vexation or delay or defeating the ends of justice, the Magistrate may require the accused to satisfy him that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the evidence of such witnesses is material, and if he is not so satisfied may refuse to summon the witnesses (recording his reasons for such refusal) or may before summoning them require such sum to be deposited as he thinks necessary so defray the expense of obtaining the attendance of the witnesses.

168. Bonds of Complainants and Witnesses.

Complainants and witnesses for the prosecution and defense whose attendance at the trial is necessary and who appeared before the Magistrate, shall execute before him bonds binding themselves to be in attendance when called upon at the trial to prosecute or give evidence, as the case may be.

 - (a) the Magistrate shall inform the accused of the offence of which he is accused and explain ;
 - (b) the Magistrate shall read out, or order to be read out, all statements recorded in the Case Diary which are relevant to the accusation, whether they were against or in favour of the accused, giving the names of the persons who made the statements, and any statements in the Case Diary made by the accused but omitting anything which is legally inadmissible in evidence and shall mark what is read out;
 - (c) the Magistrate shall show and explain to the accused anything else which is admissible in evidence, including plans and medical reports;

NOTE:- Police who have relevant evidence to give not recorded as statements in the Case Diary should be called here.

- (e) the Magistrate shall then ask the accused if he has any other witnesses and what is the gist of the evidence they can give, and the Magistrate may hear such witnesses and shall do so if there appears to be a reasonable chance that their evidence may lead to the discharge of the accused;
- (f) the Magistrate shall invite the accused to make a statement and to answer questions, informing him at the same time that he is not obliged to do so.

NOTE:- This must not be used to obtain admissions from the accused for use against him, but it is to enable the accused to satisfy the Magistrate that there is no case against him and so obtain his discharge, or to enable his defense to be fully brought out at the trial.

- (2) If after the procedure set out in sub-section (1) the Magistrate finds that there is no case against the accused he shall discharge him.
- (3) If the Magistrate finds that there is no case against the accused for trial by a High Court but that there is a case for trial by himself or some other Magistrate he shall try the accused or submit the case to the proper Magistrate.
- (4) If the Magistrate finds that there is a case against the accused for trial by a High Court he shall frame the charge or charges and read and explain them to the accused, and give the names of the witnesses who will be called for the prosecution, and ask the accused what other witnesses he requires for the defense; the Magistrate shall summon all such witnesses unless he considers that a witness can give no material evidence; the Magistrate shall inform the accused of the probable date of the trial.
- (5) At the trial, except for good reason to be recorded by the Court, no witness other than one whose statement has been read out under sub-section (1) (b) or who has given evidence under sub-section (1) (d) shall be called for the prosecution unless a statement has been taken from him previously and read to the accused by a Magistrate.
- (6) If there is a prosecutor or a pleader for the defense they shall be allowed to address the Magistrate in that order before he makes his findings.

CHAPTER XIX TRIALS BY HIGH COURTS

No person shall be tried by a High Court unless he has been committed for trial to such Court as provided in Chapter XVIII.

174. Commencement of Trial.

- (1) When a High Court is ready to commence the trial the accused shall appear or be brought before it and the charge shall be read out in Court and explained to him and he shall be asked whether he is guilty of the offence or offences charged.
- (2) If the accused pleads guilty the plea shall be recorded and he may in the discretion of the Court be convicted thereon; provided that if the offence charged is punishable with death the presiding Magistrate shall enter a plea of not guilty on behalf of the accused.

NOTE:- See note to section 150, (2)

175. Plea of Not Guilty or no Plea.

If the accused pleads not guilty or makes no plea or if the presiding Magistrate enters a plea of not guilty on behalf of the accused the Court shall proceed to try the case.

176. Opening Case for Prosecution.

- (1) The prosecutor (if any) shall open his case by reading from the Penal Code or other law the description of the offence charged and stating shortly by what evidence he expects to prove the guilt of the accused.
- (2) The prosecutor or if there is no prosecutor the Court shall then examine the witnesses for the prosecution who may be cross-examined by the accused or his pleader and thereafter examined by the prosecutor or the Court, as the case may be.

177. Examination of Accused at Inquiry to be read.

After the witnesses for the prosecution have been heard the examination of the accused duly recorded by or before the committing Magistrate shall be produced and read out in Court.

178. Procedure After Conclusion of Evidence for Prosecution.

- (1) After the reading of the examination of the accused, the accused shall be examined as provided in section 218. After that he shall be asked whether he means to call witnesses other than to character.
- (2) If the accused says that he does not intend to call any witness other than to character, the prosecutor (if any) may sum up his case against the accused and the Court shall then call upon the accused to enter upon the defense.

Provided always that the Court may, after hearing the summing up (if any) if it considers that the evidence against the accused or any of several accused is not sufficient to justify the continuation of the trial, record a finding of not guilty in respect, of such accused without calling upon him or them to enter upon' the defense. Such accused shall thereupon be discharged and the Court shall then call upon the remaining accused (if any) to enter upon the defense.

(3) If the accused or any one of several accused says that he intends to call any witness other than to character, the Court shall call upon the accused to enter upon the defense.

Provided always that the Court may, before calling upon the accused to enter upon the defense, call upon the prosecutor to sum up his case against any one or more of the accused against whom it considers that the evidence is not sufficient to justify the continuation of the trial and, after hearing the summing up (if any), may in its discretion record a finding of not guilty in respect of any of such accused or call upon any of them to enter upon his or their defense.

NOTE:- Sub-sections (2) and (3) lay down the ordinary procedure in trials, the provision to them lay down a procedure to be followed in exceptional cases where the Court thinks it unnecessary to call upon all or some of the accused for their defense. Sub-section (2) deals with cases where no witnesses other than witnesses to character are called for the defense of any of the accused. Sub-section (3) deals with cases where witnesses other than witnesses to character are intended to be called for the defense of all or some of the accused: in such cases the normal procedure is that the prosecutor does not address the Court a second time until all the evidence for all the accused has been presented and the accused or their advocates have addressed the Court, but the proviso to sub-section (3) enables the Court to intervene with an acquittal and so shorten the proceedings. This power should however not be exercised in cases coming under sub-section (3) unless the case as regards those whom it is desired so to acquit is quite clear or for other special reasons and cannot be exercised except after giving the prosecutor an opportunity of summing up his case against the person or persons whom it is intended so to acquit.

A prosecutor who sums up his case against any accused persons under sub-section (3) has the same right of reply under section 181 after the witnesses for the defense have been heard against those of the accused whom the Court does not acquit under this sub-section as if he had not already summed up his case.

179. Defense.

When the Court calls upon the accused to enter upon the defense the accused or his pleader may open his case stating the facts or law on which he intends to rely and making such comments as he thinks necessary on the evidence for the prosecution. He may then examine his witnesses (if any) and, after their cross-examination and re-examination (if any), the accused may make a statement in his defense and he or his pleader may sum up his case.

180. Right of Accused as to Examination And Summoning of witnesses.

The accused shall be allowed to examine any witness not previously named by him if such witness is in attendance, but he shall not, except as provided in section 198, be entitled as of right to have any witness summoned other than the witness named in the list or lists delivered to the Magistrate by whom he was committed for trial.

NOTE:- (1) See section 164.

(2) For the powers of the Court to summon any material witness or to examine any person present or to re-call for re-examination any witness already examined see section 219.

181. Prosecutor's Right of Reply.

If the accused or any of the accused calls any witness other than to character the prosecutor shall be entitled to reply. And, if the accused has called only witnesses for character, the prosecutor may at the close of the case for the defense adduce evidence of previous convictions of the accused.

Provided that in any case with the leave of the Court the prosecutor may be heard in reply on a point of law or, where none of the accused has called evidence other than to character but any of them has introduced new matter in his statement to the Court, on such new matter.

NOTE:- The introduction of new matter might be a ground for the exercise by the Court of its powers under section 21.

182. Consideration of Finding.

When the case for the defense and the prosecution reply (if any) are concluded and the Court does not desire to put any further questions to the accused, the Court shall be closed to consider its findings.

183. Announcement of Finding.

After the Court has made its finding the Court shall be re-opened and the finding announced.

184. Procedure on Finding of Guilty.

If the finding is guilty the accused shall, if he has not previously called any witnesses to character, be asked whether he wishes to call any such witnesses and after such witnesses (if any) have been heard he shall be asked whether he desires to make any statement in mitigation of punishment.

After the accused has made his statement (if any) in mitigation of punishment the prosecution shall, unless such evidence has already been given, produce evidence of any previous convictions of the accused.

185. Sentence.

The Court shall then again be closed to consider the sentence and after it has determined the sentence the Court shall be re-opened and the sentence announced.

186. Recommendation to Mercy.

The Court may in any case in recording the sentence make a recommendation for mercy but in such case shall give the reasons for its recommendation.

Note:- And see section 244.

187. Opinion of Majority to Prevail.

In all cases where the opinions of the members of the Court differ, the opinion of the Majority shall prevail.

188. Every Member to give Opinion.

Every member of a Court shall give his opinion on every question, which the Court has, to-decide. He shall give his opinion as to the sentence even though he was in favour of acquittal.

189. Order of Taking Opinions.

The opinions of the members of the Court shall be taken in succession beginning with the junior member.

190. Dissent of Member to be Reduced to Writing.

The dissent of any member of a Court from the finding together with his reasons thereof shall be reduced to writing and submitted with the record to the confirming or appellate authority but shall not form part of the record nor shall such dissent be mentioned in the judgement.

- (3) When the accused is charged with falsification of accounts under section 415 of the Penal Code it shall be sufficient to allege a general intent to defraud without naming any particular person intended to be defrauded to be the subject of the fraud or any particular day on which the offence was committed.

193. When Manner of Committing Offence must be stated.

When the nature of the case is such that the particulars mentioned in sections 191 and 192 do not give the accused sufficient notice of the matter with which he is charged the charge shall also contain such particulars of the manner in which the alleged offence was committed as will be sufficient for that purpose.

Illustrations :

- (a) A is accused of the theft of a certain article at a certain time and place. The charge need not set out the manner in which the theft was effected.
- (b) A is accused of cheating B at a given time and place. The charge must set out the manner in which A cheated B.
- (c) A is accused of giving false evidence at a given time and place. The charge must set out that portion of the evidence given by A which is alleged to be false.

194. Effect of Errors.

No error in stating either the offence or the particulars required to be stated in the charge and no omission to state the offence of those particulars shall be regarded at any stage of the case as material, unless the accused was in fact misled by such error or omission and it has occasioned a failure of justice.

Illustrations :

- (1) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge or is set out incorrectly. A defends himself, calls witnesses and gives his own account of the transaction. The Court or the confirming authority may infer from this that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating is not material.
 - (a) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge. There were many transactions between A and B, and A had no knowledge to which of them the charge referred and offered no defense. It may be inferred from such facts that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating was in this case a material error.
 - (b) A is charged with the murder of B on 21st January 2000. In fact the murdered person's name was B and the date of the murder was the 30th January, 2000. A was never charged with any murder but one and had heard the inquiry before the Magistrate, which referred exclusively to the case of B. It may be inferred from these facts that A was not misled and that the error in the charge was immaterial.
- (2) A was accused of murdering B on the 20th January 2000 and B (who tried to arrest him for that murder) on the 21st January, 2000. He was, upon a charge tried for referring to the murdered man as 'B' the murder of 'B'. The witnesses present in his defense were witnesses in the case of B. It may be inferred from this that A was misled and that the error was material.

195. Power of Court to Frame, Alter or Add to Charge.

- (1) When any person is committed for trial without a charge the Court may frame a charge against him.

- (2) Subject to the provisions of this code as to the joinder of charges and the separate trial of distinct offences any Court may at any time before judgement is pronounced frame a new charge or additional head of charge or amend any charge which is erroneous or defective; provided always that a High Court shall not frame a charge or head of charge based on facts of which evidence has not been taken at the magisterial inquiry.
- (3) Every charge or head of charge so framed, added or amended shall be read and explained to the accused and his plea thereof shall be taken.

196. When Court may Proceed with Trial Immediately after Framing, Altering or adding to Charge.

If the charge as revised under section 195 is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is not likely in the opinion of the Court to prejudice the accused in his defense of the prosecutor (if any) in the conduct of the case, the Court may in its discretion forthwith proceed with the trial as if the charge so revised had been the original charge.

197. When New Trial may be Directed, or Trial Suspended.

If the revised charge is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is likely in the opinion of the Court to prejudice the accused or the prosecutor as aforesaid, the Court may either, direct a new trial or adjourn the trial for such period as may be necessary.

199. Recall of witnesses when Charge Revised.

For every distinct offence of which any person is accused there shall be a separate charge and every such charge shall be tried separately, except in the cases mentioned in sections 200, 201, 202, 203 and 296.

Illustration.

A is accused of theft on one occasion, and of causing grievous hurt on another occasion. A must be separately charged and separately tried for the theft and for causing grievous hurt.

200. Offences of like Character may be Charged Together.

Where a person is accused of several offences of the same or similar character he may be charged with and tried at one trial for any number of them; provided that if the Court, before the trial or at any stage of the trial before judgment is pronounced, considers that he may be prejudiced or embarrassed in his defense by such procedure or that for any other reason it is desirable to do so, the Court may order a separate trial for any one or more of such charges.

201. Acts Forming the Same Transaction.

If a series of acts so connected together as to form the same transaction is alleged, the accused may be charged with and tried at one trial for every offence which he would have committed if the whole of such acts or some or more of them without the rest were proved.

Note:- In passing sentence the Court must nevertheless have regard to section 74 of the Penal Code.

Illustrations.

- (a) A, an accountant, commits criminal breach of trust and to conceal his offence falsifies his accounts. A may be separately charged with and tried at one trial for criminal breach of trust (section 350 of the Penal Code) and falsification of accounts (section 415 of the Penal Code.)
- (b) A commits robbery on B and in doing so voluntarily causes hurt to him. A may be separately charged with and tried at one trial for offences under sections 278, 334 and 336 of the Penal Code.

202. When it is Doubtful on which Occasion Offences has been Committed.

If a series of acts is of such a nature that it appears that an offence was committed on one of several occasions but it is doubtful whether the facts which can be proved will show on which occasion an offence was committed, the accused may be charged with having committed an offence alternatively on one or other of such occasions.

Note :- For form of judgement on conviction in the alternative see section 243 (3), See also section 75 of the Penal Code.

Illustration.

A states on oath before the Magistrate that he saw B hit C with a club. Before another Court a states on oath that B never hit C. A may be charged in the alternative and convicted of intentionally giving false evidence, although it cannot be proved which of these contradictory statements was false.

NOTE:- For form of charge see Schedule 111, 43B(3).

For form of judgement on conviction in the alternative see section 248(4). See also section 75 of the Penal Code.

203. When it is Doubtful what Offence has been Committed.

If a single act or series of acts is of such a nature that if it is doubtful which of several different offences the facts which can be proved will constitute, the accused may be charged with having committed all or any one or more of such offences and any number of such charges be tried together, or he may be charged in the alternative with having committed one or more of the said offences.

NOTE:- For form of judgment on conviction in the alternative see section 248 (4). See also section 75 of the Penal Code.

Illustration.

A is accused of an act which may amount to theft or receiving stolen property or criminal breach of trust. He may be charged (a) with theft and receiving stolen property and criminal breach of trust or (b) with theft or receiving stolen property or criminal breach of trust alternatively or (c) with one or two of these offences omitting the others or other of them.

204. When Person Charged with One Offence May Be Convicted of Another.

- (1) If in the case mentioned in section 203 the accused is charged with one offence and it appears in evidence that he committed a different offence with which he might have been charged under the provisions of that section, he may be convicted of the offence, which he is shown to have committed although he was not charged with it.
- (2) When the accused is charged with an offence, he may be convicted of having attempted to commit that offence although the attempt is not separately charged.

205. Conviction of Lesser Offence Where Greater Charged.

- (1) When a person is charged with an offence consisting of several particulars, a combination of some only of which constitute a complete minor offence, and such combination is proved but the remaining particulars are not proved, he may be convicted of the minor offence though he was not charged with it.
- (2) When a person is charged with an offence and facts are proved which reduced it to a minor offence, he may be convicted of the minor offence although he is not charged with it.

206. What Persons May Be Charged Jointly.

The following persons may be charged and tried jointly namely:-

- (a) persons accused of the same offence committed by them in the same transaction;
- (b) persons accused of an offence and persons accused of abetment or of an attempt to commit the same offence;

- (c) persons accused of more than one offence of the same or similar character committed by them jointly;

NOTE :- See Section 200.

- (d) persons accused of different offences committed in the course of the same transaction;
- (e) persons accused of offences which include theft, extortion or criminal misappropriation and persons accused of receiving or retaining or assisting in the disposal or concealment of property, the possession of which has been transferred by offences committed by the first-named persons, or abetment of or attempting to commit any of the last named offences;
- (f) persons accused of offences under sections 353 and 356 of the Penal Code or either of those sections in respect of stolen property the possession of which has been transferred by one offence;
- (g) persons accused of any offence under Chapter XVI or XVII of the Penal Code relating to counterfeit coin or notes or revenue stamps and persons accused of any other offences under the said Chapters relating to the same coin or note or the same revenue stamp or of abetment of or attempting to commit any such offence; and
- (h) persons accused of offences committed during a fight or series of fights one arising out of another, and persons accused of abetting any of these offences; the provisions contained in the former part of this chapter shall, so far as may be, apply to all such charges.

Illustrations.

- (a) A and B are accused of the same murder. A and B may be charged and tried together for the murder.
- (b) A and B are accused of housebreaking by night in the course of which A commits a murder with which B has nothing to do. A and B may be tried together on a charge, charging both of them with housebreaking by night and B alone with the charge of murder.
- (c) A and B are both charged with theft and B is charged with two other thefts committed by him in the course of the same transaction. A and B may be tried together on a charge charging both with the one theft and B alone with the two other thefts.

- (2) A person convicted of any offence constituted by any act causing consequences, which together with such act constituted a different offence from that of which he was convicted, may be afterwards tried for such last mentioned offence, if the consequences had not happened or were not known to the Court to have happened at the time when he was convicted.
- (3) A person acquitted or convicted of any offence constituted by any acts may notwithstanding such acquittal or conviction be subsequently charged with and tried for any other offence constituted by the same acts which he may have committed, if the Court by which he was first tried was not competent to try the offence with which he is subsequently charged.

Illustrations:

- (a) A is tried upon a charge of theft as a servant and acquitted. He cannot afterwards, while the acquittal remains in force, be charged with theft as a servant or upon the same facts with the theft simply or with criminal breach of trust.
- (b) A is tried upon a charge of murder and acquitted. There is no charge of robbery; but it appears from the facts that A committed robbery at the time when the murder was committed; he may afterwards be charged with and tried for robbery;
- (c) A is tried for causing grievous hurt and convicted. The person injured afterwards dies. A may be tried again for culpable homicide.
- (d) A is charged before a High Court and convicted of the culpable homicide not amounting to murder of B. A may not while the conviction remains in force afterwards be tried on the same facts for the murder of B.

Illustration:

Where 'A' is tried and convicted for causing grievous hurt to 'B' and 'B' subsequently dies of his injuries 'A' may be tried again for murder (see section 207). 'B's' evidence at the first trial may be used in the second trial, 'B' being dead and the question in issue at each trial substantially the same.

Where the accused that has made statements incriminating the other accused is not on trial with them he should be called as a witness in the usual way. When the evidence of one accused is an essential part of the case for the prosecution or defense of another, the accused should be tried separately (see section 238 and note thereto). An exception may be made when persons are being jointly tried by virtue of section 206 (h) for offences connected within the same Act.*

- (2) When in such a case the proceedings are before a Magistrate of the second or Payam Court, the Magistrate may apply to a Magistrate of the first class who shall have power if he thinks fit to issue a commission for the examination of the witness.

NOTE: The issue of such commission is an expedient, which should only be adopted in extreme cases of delay, expense or inconvenience.

226. Examination of Witness on Commission.

- (1) The Magistrate or Court issuing such commission may send any interrogatories in writing submitted by the prosecution or the defense or prepared by himself which he deems relevant to the questions at issue, to the Magistrate to whom the commission is directed who shall examine the witness upon such interrogatories.
- (2) The prosecutor and the accused may appear in person or by pleader before such Magistrate and examine, cross-examine or re-examine as the case may be such witness provided that if the accused is in custody he shall not be entitled to appear in person.

- (2) The interrogatories settled by the Magistrate or Court under sub-section (1) may be answered by affidavit duly sworn by the witness in question or in such other manner as a County Judge or in his absence, the High Court or the Court of Appeal may order.

227. Return of Commission.

After any commission issued under section 225 has been duly executed it shall be returned together with the deposition of the witness examined there under to the Court which issued; the commission, the return thereto and the deposition shall be open at all reasonable times to inspection by the prosecution or defense and subject to all just exceptions may be read in evidence in the case and shall form part of the record. Any deposition so taken may also be received in evidence at any subsequent stage of the same case before another Court.

Any such deposition may on the arrest of such person be given in evidence against him at the inquiry into or trial for the offence with which he is charged if the deponent is dead or incapable of giving evidence or his attendance cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which in the circumstances of the case would be unreasonable.

231. Record of Evidence when Offender is Unknown.

If it appears that an offence punishable with death or imprisonment for ten years and upwards has been committed by unknown person or persons, any Magistrate of the first class may hold an inquiry and examine any witness who can give evidence concerning the offence. Any depositions so taken may be given in evidence against any person who is subsequently accused of the offence if the deponent is dead or incapable of giving evidence or beyond the limits of the New Sudan.

The Attorney General may by similar writing inform the Magistrate or Court conducting such inquiry or trial that he does not in respect of all or any of the offences alleged or charged intend to prosecute the person or any one or more of the persons accused; thereupon, in every such case, all proceedings in respect of any such offence alleged or charged shall be stayed and the person or persons accused shall be discharged of and from the same.
